Same-sex benefits rejected

DENVER • The Colorado State University Board of Governors has rejected a plan to extend benefits to employees' domestic partners, including those of the same sex.

CSU provisions allow benefits to those in common-law marriages, but it has not followed the University of Colorado's lead in adopting benefits for same-sex partners.

The plan would have offered health insurance, medical leave and other perks to partners of CSU and CSU-Pueblo employees in exclusive, committed relationships.

NEWS SERVICES

Gazette
6/24/04

Corp as a local woodsman where he sent home $27 a month to his parents and kept $3 for himself. After his marriage to Marjorie in 1939, he worked the WPA program learning cement and masonry. He attended business school in Chillicothe, MO., and worked sawmills and made 200 grain doors a day. He worked at the VA hospital in Hot Springs and the Black Hills Ordinance in Igloo. He served his country in the Navy 1944-1946, as radarman second class on the p.m., June 28,

Church of Rap will follow at Memorial co made to Alte
Colorado Sp
Way, Monume appreciation fo given to our wonderful staf

Dignity 23
71